

Legacy Giving FAQs

Frequently Asked Questions

Do I need to be wealthy to leave a legacy gift?

No. Legacy gifts come from donors of all income levels. Even a modest percentage of an estate can have a transformational impact on future students.

Can I change my mind?

Yes. Most planned gifts, including charitable bequests, are revocable and may be updated whenever your circumstances change.

Do I need to notify Key to Change?

No. While there is no obligation to inform us of your plans, letting us know allows us to thank you, better understand your wishes, and ensure we have accurate information should your advisors ever need assistance.

May I direct my gift to a particular purpose?

Often, yes. We encourage you to speak with us before finalizing a restricted gift so we can ensure your wishes can be honored well into the future.

Can my gift remain anonymous?

Absolutely. Key to Change respects every donor's wishes regarding recognition and confidentiality.

Primary Contact

Robert Simonds, Director of Strategic Relationships and Partnerships

rsimonds@keytochangestudio.org

(425) 998-6058

We welcome conversations with attorneys, financial planners, accountants, and other professional advisors to help ensure our donors' charitable intentions are fulfilled.